FAO Money

Food for All

FAO Money is the first international issue in 2,500 years of numismatic or monetary history with a common theme: Food for All. Since the times of ancient Greece, countries have placed agricultural symbols on their coinage. But in our time the need to grow more food for an accelerating world population has assumed a new importance. In 1968, in response to this challenge, the FAO Money programme was launched, using national coinage in a unique educational way to stress explicitly the need for increased food production.

To date more than 75 countries have issued coins with the Food for All message, and over 1,800 million coins are in circulation. As symbols of Central Banks and Ministries of Finance the coins already represent an important national commitment to agricultural development. In addition, they carry a small but insistent message which will pass from hand to hand over the period of a generation as a constant reminder of the need to grow more food.

In response to requests from collectors, from those active in social and economic work, and from a wide circle of supporters in the United Nations family, FAO has made up two official collections of these Grow More Food coins: FAO Money Albums, and FAO Money Panels.

FAO Money Albums

The FAO Money Albums are a comprehensive collection of every FAO coin issued, housed in loose-leaf album format. The pages measure 8½ by 7 inches (22 by 17 cm) and are custom-made to hold the coins, usually eight or nine per page. Sliding plastic windows protect the coins, while allowing both sides to be seen.

Three albums have been issued to date, containing all issues from 1968 to 1974. The first, in a red binder, was released page by page. The two pages of 1968 issues have long been sold out, and are only occasionally available. A very limited number of four-page albums remain, containing the issues from 1969-1970. These will be offered only while the supply lasts.

A blue binder contains four pages of issues from 1971-1973, and a green binder four pages of issues from 1974. These are offered complete. A grey binder with four pages of 1975 issues is now in preparation, and will be issued in late 1975. This new album may be ordered in advance.

The initial Album edition was limited to 10,000 worldwide. Recent pages have been issued in more limited quantity still, to allow more coins to be included in the Money Panel collection.

FAO Money Panels

FAO Money Panels contain a representative selection of FAO coins designed to provide a lower-priced, attractive coin display for home or office. Each panel measures 11 by 8½ inches (28 by 22 cm) and is finished in a different colour.

To date, four panels have been issued in the regular edition, in a quantity of 10,000 worldwide. Two limited editions have also been released, Panel 1A in 1,500 copies and Panel 2A in 3,000 copies. These contain scarcer, high-value coins, and are designed for collectors who wish to combine the display concept with as complete a collection as possible.

Two new panels are in preparation for release in late 1975, Panel 5 in the regular edition and Panel 3A in a limited edition of 2,000 copies.

An official collection with lasting value

Proceeds from album and panel sales are devoted to FAO's work, especially in helping to channel credit to small farmers. Their purchase is thus an important contribution to FAO's Food for All aim. But in addition they are designed as an attractive coin collection which gives value for money. Thus for example the valuation of the 34 coins in Panels 1 and 2, listed as $72.65 in the 5th (1972) edition of R.S. Yeoman's "Current Coins of the World", had risen to $90.20 by the 6th (1974) edition. FAO expects the numismatic value of its collections to continue to appreciate, especially as the earlier coins become scarcer and harder to find.

Above all, the albums and panels are intended as a living and growing collection, a durable record of mankind's response to the most important challenge of our time: that of providing food for a hungry world.

Service to collectors

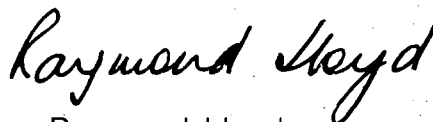

Full technical details of the coins are sent to each Album or Panel owner, including size, weight, quantity of issue, design and inscription. In addition, collectors receive a periodical Newsletter with details of new coin issues and announcements of new album and panel collections. The FAO Money Office also answers individual queries whenever possible.

Collectors of FAO Money also receive announcements of all new Ceres medals issued by FAO. These portray distinguished contemporary women as Ceres, the Roman goddess of agriculture, with the purpose of drawing attention to the important role of women in agricultural development. Collector versions of each medal are struck in bronze, bronze-gilt, silver and gold. An illustrated booklet of the medals so far issued is available free on request.

How to order

This catalogue lists the FAO-inspired coins issued to date, illustrating the 14 Album pages issued to date and providing brief details of each coin. The Money Panels are also illustrated, with full details for each coin to be found under the relevant Album page.

Details of prices and availability are given in the enclosed price list. Orders may be sent either to one of the official distributors listed on the inside back cover, or direct to FAO Money Office, FAO, 00100 Rome, Italy, or FAO Money (Rome), 1776 F Street NW, Washington DC 20437.
